WA has a new Building & Construction Industry Code of Conduct 2016

This Code of Conduct will cover all major State contracts worth more than $10 million. It has been designed to prevent anti-competitive behaviour, improve workplace safety and ensure subcontractors are paid on time.

Join us at the WA Club on 22nd February for a Breakfast with Mike Nahan, Member for Riverton and Ken Phillips of Independent Contractors Australia for a briefing and Q & A on this new WA Construction Code to learn what it is, the compliance issues and its likely impact.

"It is one of those things that quite potentially is a major item in encouraging the growth of the WA economy and certainly it is quite clear that this is the best policy across the country"

Ken Phillips, Business News Jan 16 2017

The breakfast is designed to bring the code to the attention of the construction industry and lawyers and business managers who may have a need to ensure compliance.

The event will provide key details on the code with a particular emphasis on compliance by and to subcontractors.

"I don't think people in the industry, either the construction industry or the development industry, have a remote comprehension of the potential impact of this"

Ken Phillips, Business News Jan 16 2017

Presented By:

Independent Contractors Australia (ICA)

Speakers:

Hon Mike Nahan MLA
Member for Riverton

Ken Phillips
Executive Director ICA

Independent Contractors Australia was one of the key organisations consulted by the government in the formulation and design of the WA Construction Code.

Other organisations included WACCI and MBA.

ICA has a particular focus on subcontractors in relation to the code and specialises on issues in that area.
